

About the Authors

MOSHE ADDAD is a Full Professor and a Senior Researcher in the field of delinquent behavior. Currently, he is serving as Chair of the Department of Criminology at Bar Ilan University, Ramat Gan, Israel, and is in charge of criminology studies in five colleges under the auspices of Bar-Ilan University. Professor Addad has published sixty studies concerning relationships between personality and delinquency, psychopathology and delinquency, violence in schools and in the family, immigration and crime, minorities and crime, terrorist suicide and crime, moral judgment, moral profiling and delinquent behavior.

DAVID L. ALTHEIDE is Regents' Professor in the School of Justice and Social Inquiry at Arizona State University. A sociologist, who uses qualitative methods, his work has focused on the role of mass media and information technology for social control. His theoretical and methodological statements on the relevance of mass media for sociological analysis include An Ecology of Communication: Cultural Formats of Control (Aldine de Gruyter 1995), and Qualitative Media Analysis (Sage 1996). His most recent book, Creating Fear: News and the Construction of Crisis (Aldine de Gruyter 2002), focuses on the news media's discourse of fear and the social consequences of this portrayal. This book received the 2004 Cooley Award, as the best book for the year in the tradition of symbolic interaction, from the Society for the Study of Symbolic Interaction.

FLETCHER N. BALDWIN JR is the Chesterfield Smith Professor of Law, and Director, Center for International Financial Crimes Studies, University of Florida; founding Director,

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Montpellier University Summer Program in Law, Montpellier, France; also visiting Professeur au Centre de Droit de l'Entreprise, Montpellier; and Honorary Fellow, Center of Advanced Legal Studies, University of London. He is a member of the Board of Governors of Witan Hall, England. He has taught at Makerere University in Uganda; Baylor University, Escuela Libre De Derecho in Mexico City; the Cambridge-Warsaw Program at Trinity College, Cambridge, England; the University of Lodz, Poland; and the ABA OPAL Program at Princeton and Brown Universities. He has been a Delegate to the Conference on Human Rights, Kiev State University, Ukraine and International Constitutional Law Roundtable, Murten, Switzerland. He is also a Visiting Lecturer, University of Natal Pietermaritzburg, South Africa; Visiting Lecturer, Department of Treasury's Federal Law Enforcement Training Center, Glynco, Georgia; CEELI Legal Specialist, and Advisor to the Parliament, and the Constitutional Court Kiev, Ukraine. He has been a Consultant and Technical Advisor on matters pertaining to International Financial Crimes to the Juridical Council, Thailand and Consultant to the Attorney General, Indonesia where he also delivered lectures at the Universities of Pajarau and Diponegoro. He was a Speaker and Delegate at the Eleventh through Twenty-Third International Symposium on Economic Crime, Jesus College, Cambridge, England. The Centre for International Financial Crimes Studies is one of the Organizing Institutions for the Cambridge Symposium. He is Co-Founder and Lecturer, Center for Human Rights and Peace, Makerere University, Kampala, Uganda. He has written several books and articles, including a five volume Treatise on Money Laundering Asset Forfeiture and International Financial Crimes, (1993-2002) (Oceana Press, NY) and a three volume Treatise on Cybercrime and Security (Oceana Press, co-authored). He is also one of the General Editors of the Financial Crime Review. His active practice is limited to appellate constitutional litigation. He is a graduate of the University of Georgia (A.B.) (J.D. Hon.), University of Illinois (LL.M), and Yale University (LL.M). He has served in the United States Marine Corps and in the United States Army.

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

ANNE BAYEFISKY, B.A., M.A. LL.B., M.Litt (Oxon), is Adjunct Professor and Associate Research Scholar, Columbia University Law School, New York City, and Full Professor, Department of Political Science, York University, Toronto. She has also held appointments as Lady Davis Fellow, Hebrew University Law Faculty; Director, Centre for Refugee Studies, York University; and Professor of Constitutional and International Human Rights Law, University of Ottawa. She is the recipient of the Bora Laskin National Fellowship in Human Rights Research (1992) (one award annually, Canada's premier human rights research fellowship) and the recipient MacArthur Foundation Grant, Program on Peace and International Cooperation (1995-96) (international competition). She has served on a number of delegations including: Delegate of the International Association of Jewish Lawyers and Jurists to the NGO Forum, and of UN Watch to the Durban World Conference Against Racism (2001); Academic Member of the Canadian Delegations to the U.N. Human Rights Commission (1993-1996), the UN General Assembly (1984, 1989), Vienna World Conference on Human Rights (1993); and Delegate of the American Society of International Law to the Beijing Fourth World Conference on Women (1995). Professor Bayefsky is the author of numerous books and articles in the field of international human rights law, constitutional human rights law, and equality rights. Her recent publications include: How To Complain to the UN Human Rights Treaty System (Kluwer Law International and Transnational Publishers 2002), (foreword by Stephen Schwebel); Editor of The UN Human Rights Treaty System: Universality at the Crossroads (Kluwer Law International and Transnational Publishers 2001); Editor of The UN Human Rights Treaty System in the Twenty-First Century (Kluwer Law International 2000); Co-Editor of Human Rights and Forced Displacement (Martinus Nijhoff Publishers 2000); and Editor of Self-Determination in International Law: Quebec and Lessons Learned (Kluwer Law International 2000).

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

ANAT BERKO is currently a Research Fellow at the International Policy Institute for Counterterrorism (ICT), the Interdisciplinary Center, Herzliya, Israel. Dr. Berko holds a Ph.D. in Criminology from Bar-Ilan University in Israel, where she researched socio-psychological aspects of terrorists' morality. Dr. Berko serves as a member of Israel's governmental team dealing with counter-terrorism in the army, and she is a consultant to the Israeli National Security Agency, Counter-Terrorism Branch. She also advises senior echelon governmental decision-makers in their efforts to counter suicide bombers. Dr. Berko has received wide coverage in the media as an expert on terrorism, particularly the criminal and moral aspects of suicidal terrorists. Dr. Berko recently completed her military career as a Lieutenant Colonel in the Israeli Defense Forces, where she held significant posts working with the Women's Corps as well as serving as the Prison Commander (Military Prison Warden) of a prison for female soldiers. Dr. Berko has studied and applied her expertise on gender issues to her work in the context of prisons, with particular attention to female security prisoners, including female suicide bombers. Her research on the topic, based on interviews she conducted with suicidal bombers and of their dispatchers, has been recently published in a book titled The Path to the Garden of Eden: The Inner World of Female and Male Suicide Bombers and their Dispatchers (Yedioth Ahronot Press 2004; in Hebrew). Dr. Berko has also published articles on suicide bombers as well as various gender issues facing the military.

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

GRAY CAVENDER is a Professor in the School of Justice and Social Inquiry at Arizona State University. Research interests include how various media depict matters of crime, law and justice; and corporate crime. With colleagues, he is preparing a revised edition of Corporate Crime Under Attack: The Ford Pinto Case and Beyond (Anderson), which will commemorate the 25th anniversary of the famous criminal trial of the Ford Motor Company.

LIOR COHEN-RAZ is a clinical psychologist, Head of the M.A. Program of Clinical Criminology, Bar-Ilan University (BIU), and Psychotherapist in a private clinic. She received the Ph.D from the Department of Psychology at BIU. Research interests include victimization in the context of terrorism and sexual offenses; reactions to serial criminal threats; aggression and affects; functional and psychophysical evaluation of criminals, crimes, and victims responses. She recently co-authored "Moral Judgment of Children: Analysis in Terms of Psychodynamics of Blame in Everyday Life," published in Crime and Social Deviance: Theory and Practice (Ramat-Gan: Bar-Ilan University Press (2002; in Hebrew; English abstract).

RANDEL D. HANSON is an Assistant Professor in the School of Justice and Social Inquiry at Arizona State University, where he also is an Affiliate Faculty and Advisory Board Member in the American Indian Studies Program. His research is focused on the relationships between political economy and the production and distribution of environmental hazards, particularly as it relates to American Indian reservation communities. In addition to various articles, he has two books forthcoming, including From Bad to Goods: Marketing Nuclear Waste to American Indians (University of Minnesota Press); and (with Joseph Masco) and Half Lives: Chapters in the Social Life of Nuclear Materials (University of Minnesota Press).

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

PAUL KNEPPER is Lecturer in Social Policy in the Department of Sociological Studies at the University of Sheffield, UK. He is also a member of the Centre for Criminological Research at the University of Sheffield. He holds the PhD in Justice Studies from Arizona State University. He is interested in theoretical criminology, the philosophy of social science, and the socio-political construction of racial/ethnic identities. Recent publications include “Michael Polanyi and Jewish Identity,” to be published in Philosophy of the Social Sciences, “Crime Prevention in a Multinational Open Society,” forthcoming in International Criminal Justice Review; and “Oakeshott and the New Crime Prevention,” published in Australian and New Zealand Journal of Criminology (2004(36):338-353).

AARON KUPCHIK is a sociologist and Assistant Professor of Justice and Social Inquiry at Arizona State University. His research focuses on the social control of youth and the social construction of youthfulness. Recent publications include articles in Social Problems, Punishment and Society and Criminology and Public Policy.

MELINDA NEGRON, MA, is a Ph.D candidate in Political Science at the University of Florida. She specializes in research on terrorism, separatist insurgencies, and social movements.

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

WILLIAM PARKIN IV earned his M.S. in Justice Studies at Arizona State University. He plans to pursue a doctorate and continue his work on the study of terrorism. He works at the University of Richmond in Richmond, Virginia.

SHELDON RICHMOND is a computer specialist who works for the Canadian government. He holds a Ph.D degree in philosophy from Boston University and M.A. in Computer Applications to Education from the University of Toronto. He is the author of the book, Aesthetic Criteria: Gombrich and the Philosophies of Science of Popper and Polanyi (Rodopi 1994) and recently, articles/reviews in Appraisal and Tradition and Discovery. His web site is: <http://askthephilosopher.cjb.net>.

GARY SCANLAN is a Reader in Law at the Department of Law City University London. He has published extensively in the areas of procedural and commercial law, corporate fraud, and terrorism. His books on the Law of Limitation and on the Law of Partnership have been cited extensively in courts in England and overseas. A recent article with Professor McGee of the University of Manchester on constructive knowledge in the Limitation Act 1980, published in Civil Justice Quarterly, was cited by Baroness Hale in the House of Lords in the case of Adams v. Bracknell Borough Council (2004). Dr Scanlan has written extensively on UK terrorist legislation for Sweet & Maxwell.

ADAM L. SILVERMAN is a Visiting Assistant Professor in the Department of Criminal Justice at Temple University. He received his Ph.D in Political Science/Criminology, from the University of Florida in Spring of 2002 and was the Breier Post-Doctoral Fellow at the University of Florida from 2002 through 2004. Dr. Silverman specializes in research on terrorism, counter-terrorism, security administration and policy, religion and political violence/politics, violence, and deviance. He is the author of several articles, chapters, and conference papers on the social behavioral dynamics and the social structural factors of terrorism. Dr. Silverman is also a member of the Loss Prevention Research Team/Loss Prevention Research Council at the University of Florida.

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

SHLOMO G. SHOHAM is Professor, Faculty of Law, Tel Aviv University. He holds an LL.M. and LL.D. from the Hebrew University of Jerusalem and completed further study at the University of Cambridge. He was Assistant District Attorney of Jerusalem and Assistant to Attorney of Israel before his distinguished career in criminology. He served as Director of the Institute of Criminology, Bar-Ilan University, and Director, Institute of Criminology and Criminal Law, Tel Aviv University. He has been a visiting professor at the Sorbonne, Oxford, and Harvard universities and has given invited lectures in Australia, Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Germany, Greece, Malta, Poland, Sweden, and Switzerland. He is the recipient of the Sellin-Glueck Award for 1977 from the American Society of Criminology and the Israel Prize in Criminology in 2003. He has published hundreds of books and articles in many countries and languages. His research projects focus on various aspects of deviant behavior, taking the whole personality as the unit of analysis. Professor Shoham's The Promethean Bridge (de Sitter Publications 2004, English version) examines the cognitive relationship that humans have with their surroundings.

JULIANE WETZEL is a historian. She received her Ph.D in Munich 1986 (thesis on Jewish Displaced Persons in Munich). From 1986 to 1991 she worked at the Munich Institut fuer Zeitgeschichte as a researcher, since 1991 she is a researcher at the Zentrum fuer Antisemitismusforschung/Center for Research on Anti-Semitism, Technical University Berlin. Her main research subjects and publications deal with the persecution of Jews in Germany during the Nazi era, Jewish Displaced Persons in Germany, and Jews in Germany after 1945, help and solidarity for Jews in Italy during Nazi occupation, right extremism, anti-Semitism on the Internet, anti-Semitism in Europe. Recent publications: co-authored with Angelika Königseder, Waiting for Hope: Jewish Displaced Persons in Post-World War II Germany (Evanston/Illinois 2001); “An Uneasy Existence: Jewish Survivors in Germany after 1945,” published in Miracle Years. A Cultural History of West Germany 1949-1968 (Princeton, Oxford 2000); “Die internationale Rechte und der arabische Antizionismus im” (International Right-extremism and Arab anti-Zionism in the World Wide Web], in: Jahrbuch für Antisemitismusforschung 2003(12):121-144; together with Angelika Königseder, “DP Camp 1945-1950: The British Section,” published in Jewish Displaced Persons in Camp Bergen-Belsen 1945-1950 (Zwolle 2003: 42-55); and co-authored with Werner Bergmann, Manifestations of Anti-Semitism in the European Union—First Semester 2002—Synthesis Report (Vienna 2003, online).

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

PAUL WILSON is Professor and Chair of Criminology at Bond University, Queensland, Australia. His fields of interest include terrorism studies, miscarriages of justice and the general area of forensic criminology. Professor Wilson is the author or co-author of 26 books the most recent being The Australian Criminal Justice System, co-authored with Professor Duncan Chappell, due for release in early 2005.

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

YUVAL WOLF is a Full Professor at the Department of Criminology and Dean of the Faculty of Social Sciences at Bar-Ilan University (BIU), Israel. He received his PhD, Department of Psychology, BIU. Current interests include psychological accounts of crime, delinquency and social deviance, prevention of violence in general and terrorism in specific, and nonviolent conflict resolution. Recent (since 2001) publications include 19 articles (part of them with collaborators). Noteworthy are the presentations of his conception of moral/judgmental and related empirical validation, "Modularity in Everyday Life Judgments of Aggression and Violent Behavior" Aggression and Violent Behavior: A Review Journal 2001(6): 1-34. He co-authored with R. Wolf, "Definition and Identification of Terrorism in Terms of Functional Perceptions of Potential Victims," published in Crime and Social Deviance: Theory and Practice (Ramat Gan: Bar-Ilan University Press 2002; in Hebrew, English abstract).