

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Tilman Dederling

Dederling is a lecturer in the Department of History at the University of South Africa. He has an MA from the Free University of Berlin, and a Ph.D. from the University of Cape Town. His research interests lie in Namibian studies, modern German history, world history, and history on the Internet.

Rialize Ferreira

Ferreira is a Senior Lecturer in the Department of Sociology at the University of South Africa. She holds a MA from the University of South Africa and a Ph.D. from Potchefstroom University in South Africa. She has published various articles in the field of military sociology.

Richard L. Harris

Harris is a Professor in the Global Studies Program at California State University, Monterey Bay. He is one of the co-editors of the Journal of Developing Societies and a coordinating editor of Latin American Perspectives. He has a Ph.D. in Political Science from the University of California, Los Angeles and has published books and articles on African politics, Latin American affairs, socialism, democracy, and revolutionary change.

Pat Lauderdale

Lauderdale is a Professor in the School of Justice Studies and director of the Justice Studies, Law and Social Sciences doctoral program at Arizona State University. He has a Ph.D. in Sociology from Stanford University. His published works include the Struggle for Control, Lives in the Balance: Perspectives on Global Injustice and Inequality, and comparative articles on indigenous jurisprudence.

Ishmael Lesufi

Lesufi is a Lecturer in the Department of Sociology at the University of South Africa. He has an MA from the University of Durban-Westville, and is interested in the sociology of work, globalisation, the state and socioeconomic development.

Ian Liebenberg

Liebenberg is a Lecturer on contract at the Department of Sociology, University of South Africa, and a Research Associate of the Unit for African Studies at the University of Pretoria, South Africa. He has published widely on issues related to democratization, the history of liberation in South African and civil-military relations inclusive of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission (TRC) in South Africa.

Monique Marks

Marks is a Senior Lecturer at the University of Natal, Durban. She has a Ph.D. from the University of Natal. Marks recently published a book on youth identity and politics in Soweto. Her current area of research interest is in police transformation and police labour relations.

Julia Maxted

Maxted is a Lecturer in Geography at the University of Pretoria. She has a D.Phil. from Nuffield College, University of Oxford, and has written widely on poverty and social exclusion, rural development, race and ethnicity, and globalization and the urban political economy.

Kammila Naidoo

Naidoo is in the Department of Sociology at the University of Pretoria. She has an MA from the University of Durban-Westville and a Ph.D. from the University of Manchester. Her research interests lie in gender studies, poverty and livelihoods.

Stephens Ntsoakae Phatlane

Phatlane is a Lecturer in the Department of History at the University of South Africa. He has a BA in Education and BA (Hons) from the University of the North, and an MA from the University of South Africa. His research interests lie in the history of medicine and health care in South Africa.

Marlene Roefs

Roefs holds a Ph.D. from the Free University of Amsterdam, The Netherlands. She is a Research Specialist in the Group: Democracy and Governance at the Human Sciences Research Council (HSRC), South Africa.

Abebe Zegeye

Zegeye is a Professor in the Department of Sociology, University of South Africa. He obtained his MA at the University of Pennsylvania, and his D.Phil. from Oxford University. He has written extensively on society, human rights, and social problems in Africa. He is a co-editor of Social Identities: Journal for the Study of Race, Nation and Culture and co-editor of African Identities.