

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Jay Albanese is Chief of the International Center at the National Institute of Justice. He is on leave from his position as professor of Government & Public Policy at Virginia Commonwealth University. He holds a Ph.D. from the School of Criminal Justice at Rutgers University. He is a past president of the Academy of Criminal Justice Sciences (ACJS), and is currently Executive Director of the International Association for the Study of Organized Crime (www.iasoc.net). Dr. Albanese is the author of books that include Criminal Justice (3rd edition, Allyn & Bacon 2005), Organized Crime in Our Times (Lexis Nexis/Anderson 2004), and is co-editor of Organized Crime: World Perspectives (Prentice Hall 2003).

Rosemary Barberet is Ramón y Cajal Research Fellow in the Department of Political Science and Sociology, Universidad Carlos III, Madrid, Spain. Previous academic appointments include the University of Leicester, England, the Universidad de Sevilla and the Universidad de Castilla-La Mancha, Spain. She has taught research methods to criminology students since 1990. Her research has centered on self-reported delinquency, violence against women, victimization and crime indicators. She is in her second elected term as Chair of the Division of International Criminology of the American Society of Criminology.

Heather Clawson is Managing Associate with Caliber Associates, Inc., and was the Principal Investigator for the Needs Assessment of Service Providers and Trafficking Victims and is Principal Investigator for the Evaluation of Office for Victims of Crime Comprehensive Services Trafficking Grantees. Currently Dr. Clawson also evaluates human trafficking training programs and serves as an advisory group member for the development of an interdisciplinary training for human trafficking.

Jennifer Schrock Donnelly is an International Program Specialist with the International Center, National Institute of Justice, U.S. Department of Justice. She holds a Master of Science in Justice, Law and Society from the School of Public Affairs at the American University in Washington, D.C. Publications include “Women in the Criminal Justice System,” and The Prediction and Control of Organized Crime: The Experience of Post-Soviet Ukraine (Transaction 2004).

Ellen Go is Research Associate with Caliber Associates, Inc., and played a critical role in the Needs Assessment of Service Providers and Trafficking Victims, and currently assists in the Evaluation of Office for Victims of Crime Comprehensive Services Trafficking Grantees, and an evaluation of human trafficking training programs. Also, she is part of a team providing technical assistance to OVC trafficking grantees. Ms. Go holds a B.A. in Sociology from Yale University.

Talene L. Kelegian is a graduate of Boston University in Boston, Massachusetts. She holds a Bachelor of Arts degree with concentrations in Sociology and Religion. Talene worked with the Drugs and Crime and International Research Division, National Institute of Justice in 2003. She is currently working as a Residential Counselor with Charles River ARC in Needham, Massachusetts.

William F. McDonald is Professor of Sociology and Anthropology, and Deputy Director, Institute of Criminal Law and Procedure, Georgetown University. He received his D.Crim. from the University of California, Berkeley; his M.Ed. from Boston College and his B.A. from the University of Notre Dame. The subjects he has taught since 1970 include criminology; criminal justice; research methods and statistics; and comparative criminal justice systems. His published work include edited books on the globalization of law enforcement; the victim; plea bargaining; the prosecutor; and criminal defense counsel; 50 authored and co-authored monographs and articles on sentencing; police-prosecutor relationships; illegal immigration; pretrial release; drug law enforcement; and comparative criminal justice.

Bradley Myles is a Research Assistant with Caliber Associates, Inc. His areas of focus include human trafficking, victim services, transnational crime, and at-risk youth and families. Mr. Myles has contributed to project team efforts for the Needs Assessment of Service Providers and Trafficking Victims and the Evaluation of Office for Victims of Crime Comprehensive Services Trafficking Grantees. He holds a B.A. in Political Science and a B.A. in Psychology from Stanford University.

Hedi Naseri is an Associate Professor of Justice Studies at Kent State University and a Visiting Fellow at the University of London's Institute of Advanced Legal Studies in the U.K. She received her graduate training in social policy and law (Ph.D. 1992) from Case Western Reserve University. She is the author of several books including Economic Espionage and Industrial Spying (Cambridge University Press 2004) and numerous journal articles and book reviews. She has written and lectured extensively in the areas of law and social sciences and has given a number of invited lectures nationally and internationally on a wide range of policy and law related topics. Professor Nasheri's research interests pertain to four related topics: Law & Technology, Protection of Trade Secrets & Economic Espionage, Cyber-Crimes, and Comparative Jurisprudence.

Dina Siegel is an Assistant Professor at the Department of Criminology and Criminal Law, Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam. She studied sociology and social anthropology at the Tel-Aviv University, Israel and obtained her Ph.D. in cultural anthropology at the Vrije Universiteit of Amsterdam, the Netherlands. She has studied and published several articles on post-Soviet organized crime, terrorism, women trafficking, criminality in diamond sector, and more recently on XTC distribution and XTC policy in the Netherlands. She conducted ethnographic research on Russian-speaking criminals in the Netherlands, Russian biznes in the Netherlands (2002). She is currently studying Israeli organized crime in the Netherlands and Belgium.

Kevonne Small is a Research Associate with Caliber Associates, Inc., and has managed several projects on transnational crime, human trafficking, and victim services for the Office of Victims of Crime and the National Institute of Justice. She holds a J.D. from Villanova University School of Law and is currently working on her Ph.D. in Justice, Law & Society at American University on quality of life and crime.